Some facts: Washington, D.C. — CBS News has been following the shocking story of hundreds of migrant children separated from their parents at the U.S.-Mexico border. We've also reported on the impact it has had on the children and their families. This week, we'll tell you about how the policy is playing out in Arizona. Reporter David Begnaud has been working this story from the border town of Nogales. Along with a CBS News crew, he filed this report.Q: Dynamically adding to the database mysqli function I'm currently developing a website with PHP and MySql and I'm having some trouble with adding my own code. Basically I want to add a database to my site but it's only if a certain user clicks on a button. The problem that I have is that I don't know how to use mysqli dynamically. For this example, let's say I have three fields in my table: id, username and password. And let's say I want to make it so that a user only can add that table if the input he/she put into the login form corresponds to the value found in the database. Now I know that to do this, I need to use a while loop with the if statement. But I have no idea where I can insert the while loop to do this. Can anyone help? A: prepare($query) or die($mysqli->error); $stmt->bind_param('sss', $username, $password); //execute the query $stmt->execute(); //close the statement $stmt->close(); ?> Q: Excel VBA: Logical operations to columns

Columns In an age of consumption, we are all busy producing and consuming, often forgetting about our soul and our true character. Yet without soul and character, it will be difficult to survive in a changing world. At our best, we find time to meditate, and we feel a connection with the rest of the planet. The following quotes are about meditation and spirituality, but you can substitute these quotes for any other word. By finding soul and character within ourselves we are no longer mere consumers. Instead we are spiritual beings who can make real change. Until he learned to smile, Sokto was not the person anyone would recognize. That is, he didn't look like Sokto. Young Jonathan was abandoned in a world that had no use for him, and he came from a world that had no room for him. He was born on an Indian reservation in the 1950s, when his mother and father were teenagers, and while there is no record of his birth, he had no birth certificate. Their only son was a forlorn foundling, a child who drifted through their lives. He was such a forgettable child that his parents, in an effort to keep him out of trouble, did not call him by his name. They called him "Say-so," and "Sokto," a pronunciation that comes from the Cree Indian word for boy. When he was about five, the girl next door's children snatched him and his sister away. He was heartbroken when he discovered they had taken their shoes, but he consoled himself with the fact that they had left his favorite blanket. For years, he wore that blanket wherever he went. "When he was very young," says his sister, Angela Thorne, "he was very happy. He smiled a lot." STORY This story was co-written by Sally Engle Merry and Marc Smith. It won the Short Story Award at the 2014 Southern USA Regional Short Story Contest. Share this Article: A recent Quaker School post concluded with the question, "What does it mean to be modern?" The description of being modern, was to be a consumer. The spirit of drinking Coke meant doing more for yourself. Don't feel guilty if you buy yourself something. This is very disturbing to me. We must all remember that the purpose of Quakers is to live in God's

The Gradient tool allows you to create a smooth gradient. This is typically used to give images a certain look or to create complex lighting effects. The Pen tools add lines or boxes to your canvas. These are especially useful for creating web-based graphics and, in addition to drawing, you can change the colors of the Pen and use different line types. The Magic Wand allows you to select an area of an image, then pick different parts of the image to select. You can set the radius of the area and select a particular range of tones to select. The Swatches panel is very similar to the color palette in other graphics programs. It allows you to create and save color palettes that you can reuse in your work. The Brush settings allow you to select the type of brush you want to use for painting. You can also select whether the brush is realist, smooth or both. To select a brush for use, you need to select a brush template and then choose one from the Library. Once you have selected a brush you want to use, you can activate it by clicking the Brush tool icon in the toolbar. You can also select a brush by choosing Open Brush, Browse Brushes, or Open Brush from the toolbar. Once you have selected the brush, you need to type in a stroke to paint with it. ## Polar Coordinates The Polar Coordinates tool allows you to paint anywhere on a canvas. It appears as a white circle with a blue marker on it. You can then click any point on the canvas to set the angle at which you want to paint. The circles then become a crosshair that you can use to draw at any point you want. This tool is often used for perspective drawing. If you want to paint at a certain angle, for example, you can enter this on the radius box of the circle. You can then enter the required distance (in pixels) from the corner. To set the angle for the Polar Coordinates tool, move the cursor toward or away from the corner of the canvas and use the slider to enter the required angle. ## Paths To make a shape, you can use the freeform Path tool or the Pen tools. The Path tools allow you to draw a figure, text or a closed shape such as a circle, and then fill the path with an image. A path behaves exactly like a shape or path created with a freeform tool.
