In this animal model, prophylactic administration of a single dose of 1.5 mg/kg free SA resulted in the rapid restoration of endogenous iNOS levels and reduced infarct size, compared to vehicle-treated animals. Further, this protection was not due to nitric oxide scavenging. Finally, it was shown that this protection is associated with reduced NO-induced iNOS gene expression, as evidenced by a reduction in iNOS promoter activity and histone hyperacetylation in SA-treated animals \[@CR37]\]. Conclusions {#Sec5} ===== Although iNOS is generally considered to have detrimental effects, it has recently been demonstrated that this enzyme c6a93da74d
