I kept playing football in college. Much to the dismay of my professors, I did not go to college to study. I went to college to play football. Class attendance was optional, and that suited me. At the end of my first year, I completed a degree in English and also completed a football course. I decided that I needed to move on, and the next year I was offered a scholarship at the university. I was supposed to study there for a year. But I didn't have this year. This year I took academic leave. Actually, I just ran away. I had to be the best. I knew that a university education would help me with this. I wanted to be the best.
